NEW LIGHT RIVALING THE ROENTGEN RAYS.

It Renders Transparent Substances Luminous in Darkness and Is Certain Test of Diamonds.

DISCOVERY AN IMPORTANT ONE.

Makes the Air a Better Conductor of Electricity and May Be of Great Use in Wireless Telegraphy.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

"Recent experiments by the Berlin High School of Technology have proven this as-sertion—that a new element is responsible for the Becqueral rays—and the interesting fact has been observed that these rays render almost every transparent substance uminous in the darkness. "These rays make it possible to tell genuine diamonds from artificial ones in the dark. This will prove of great practical importance in testing.

"The experiments have also resulted in obtaining, for the first time, larger quantities of the new element which has demonstrated that rays emanating from a larger quantity make the air such a conductor of electricity that it is hoped this property can be utilized in wireless telegraphy. Experi-ments for this purpose are being made in the Berlin institution, but the deepest se-crecy is maintained concerning them. It is stated that the results will soon be laid before the Emperor, which seems to indicate that the discovery is regarded as one of great importance."

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Washington, March 7.—United States Consul General Guenther at Frankfort reports that a new technical journal, Kirchhoff's Technische Blatter, to be issued within a few days, will contain an interesting article concerning the latest rays. He adds:

"In 1856 as French chemist discovered rays emanating from the element uranium which possessed properties similar to the Roentgen rays. They were called Becqueral rays, after their discoverer. But while the discovery of Roentgen aroused great interest in the whole civilized world, leading to radical changes in medical diagnosis, the Becqueral rays were only employed in a very limited way in physical laboratories, and an assertion by the French scientist DeMarcays that they were not emitted from uranium, but from a new element, made no impression.
